Presentation Overview:

Good leadership can be described as the ability by which an individual is able to inspire, motivate and guide a team of individuals to willingly take action and achieve extraordinary results.

There is a distinct difference between management and leadership. You manage things (cash flow, schedules and systems) but for high performance teamwork you have to lead and synergize a team. A successful executive is one who has mastered both management and leadership abilities.

Presentation Messages:

Synergy World-Class Leadership begins with personal leadership. There is a distinct difference between management and leadership. Synergy leaders build high performance individuals and teams. Synergy leaders are energizers, motivators and coaches. The single constant to success is leadership.
